"BUSINESS AS USUAL" IN THE RUHR DISTRICT

GOV. ALLEN, KANSAS, GIVES IMPRESSIONS OF OCCUPIED ZONE

GERMANS THINK POLICY OF PASSIVE RESISTANCE DOOMED TO FAILURE

REALIZED THAT A REASONABLE REPARATION OFFER MUST BE MADE

(By United Press)

London, June 1.—"Business as usual" is the order of the day in the Ruhr, despite strikes, communist uprisings, and executions, former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas said today in an interview, having just returned from a visit to the occupied industrial area.

Allen summed up his eye and ear witness impressions as follows:

1. There are few outward indications of the military occupation. The Germans are well dressed and don't look hungry.

2. Germans in the Ruhr don't attempt to conceal the fact that the policy of passive resistance is doomed to failure. It is realized that a reasonable reparation offer must be made.

3. The atmosphere of calm may be due to the fact that the French have deported 100,000 German railroad employees who might have caused trouble.

Collapse of the mark is no indication whatever of actual conditions in the occupied area, he said. "Industrial development is amazing."

"In no district of the United States has there been such a revival of building as the Ruhr has seen since the war. This has convinced me that Germany is in far better condition than the value of the mark would indicate. One cannot visit the Ruhr, one of the greatest industrial districts of the world, without believing that Germany has the capacity to produce an honest endeavor to pay her reparations."

Allen described the French occupation as "an apparently normal condition of affairs. "I went into the Ruhr," he said, "Prepared to see a sullen, hostile people in the midst of disorders, dominated by great bodies of haughty soldiers."

"I didn't see more than one thousand soldiers during my trip in the heart of the Ruhr." Allen said he was in Gelsenkirchen just after the communists gained their first coup, and in Dusseldorf when the French executed a German for sabotage.

"In both places people were following their business as if nothing had happened, and the general appearance of the town was impassive", he added.

"The feelings of the French in the matter may be appreciated when, after seeing their own devastated districts, they see these evidences of prosperity in Germany."

The fire started in the Bell Lumber Company yards and spread rapidly. Four truckc and 30 members of the Minneapolis fire department found the water supply inadequate and ran 7,000 feet of hose to the river. Late this afternoon the fire was under control, having burned about $10,000 worth of lumber and housings.

COURT MUST DECIDE WHETHER FROG IS A FISH OR AN ANIMAL

Chicago, June 1—Whether a frog is an animal or a fish must be decided by the South Clark municipal court here. A. R. Neuenfeldt, a vendor of frogs' legs, has been accussed in a complaint filed by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals with cruelty in handling frogs. The dealer declares that the charge has no basis because his frogs are not animals, but fish. The court is expected to rule soon.

FOREST FIRES ARE REPORTED IN CONTROL

(By United Press)

St. Paul, June 1—Forest fires in Northern Minnesota are reported mostly under control here today.

Slack winds the last two days have enabled hundred of fighters to make headway against flames, and, unless a strong wind arises, there is no immediate danger of further heavy damage.

One new fire was reported today north of Orr working its way into the Pelican lake state forest.

Ranger Leslie Beady was directing 100 men in fighting it. It started from slashings, he reported.

State Forester W. T. Cox left Cloquet today for Tower and Duluth on his way north to direct the fight against the fires.

The forestry office here stated reports indicated a "satisfactory situation."

MAY CALL SECOND ARMS CONFERENCE

PRESIDENT HARDING MAY TAKE UP LIMITING NAVAL ARMAMENT

(Copyright 1923 by United Press)

Washington June 1—President Harding desires to call a second conference on limitation of arms to deal with limitation of naval armament.

Mr. Harding has not abandoned the "association of nations" idea. It is more firmly fixed in his policy than ever before. He is not dismayed by the opposition to his world court plan, and in due time will show how that plan is, in fact, a part of the general plan to put the United States at the head of an association with other nations to prevent all war.

European delay, rather than American opposition, is holding up the Harding world peace program. Removal of this opposition is one of the first tasks of American diplomacy. French officials, in a polite but emphatic way, have refused to ratify the naval armament treaty at the first arms conference.

Unofficial word has come to the government that France eventually will ratify the treaty. Domestic politics are holding it up. Reservations are likely to be made by the French, but these probably will not make the treaty unacceptable. If France will ratify the treaty, it would be possible for Mr. Harding to go before the country in the coming campaign announcing his intention to do two things:

1. Call a second arms limitation conference to take further steps toward reduction of competition in armament measures.

2. Propose a world court entirely independent of the league of nations.

The second step would be in answer to the present opposition to the world court proposal, which is centering its fire on the fact that the court is a part of the league, and membership would, therefore, constitute a tie between the United States and the league.

MRS. ANNE STILLMAN MAY ADOPT BABY JAY LEEDS, STATED

WILLING TO DO SO IF ON BASIS OF COMPLETE SEPARATION FROM HIS MOTHER

(Copyright 1923 by United Press)

La Tuque, Quebec, June 1.—"If baby Jay Leeds should come into my home—and I am ready to take him in—it must be on the basis of complete separation from his mother."

Thus Mrs. Anne U. Stillman drew the line between the son of her husband and the "other woman," and herself.

"I am ready at any time to adopt little Jay Leeds and bring him up with my own children, whose half-brother he is," said Mrs. Stillman in an interview at her home at Saudasse. If Mr. Stillman shirks his plain duty, it is still the duty of the Stillman family to recognize its responsibility for the welfare of the child. If there is no one else to care for him, I will assume the entire responsibility. It is a difficult situation—a terribly difficult situation—but it does exist and we must recognize it."

HARDING ORDERS TIGHT RUM LID FOR SHRINERS

Washington, June 1—President Harding personally has ordered that the lid be clamped down tight in Washington during the Shrine convention.

It became known yesterday that the president has written a letter to the District of Columbia commissioners emphasizing the necessity for strict enforcement of the prohibition law during the sessions of the Shriners. He suggested the calling of a conference of the commissioners and prohibition authorities to work out a plan for concerted action to halt the activities of bootleggers.

The commissioners replied that they had taken every precaution to make Washington as dry as the Sahara.

GOV. AL. SMITH, HARD THINKER

AS JUDGE AND JURY IS CONSIDERING CASE OF PROHIBITION

(By United Press)

Albany, N. Y., June 1—Governor Al Smith, as judge and jury, took the case of prohibition under advisement today.

Before Sunday midnight he must sign or veto the repealer of the state enforcement act passed by the legislature: sign, and make himself leader of the wet faction in the national democratic party, or veto and abandon the cause of Tammany Hall.

The evidence in the case is all in, having been presented in the final arguments of wet and dry leaders during the five-hour hearing in the assembly chambers Thursday.

The 30-day period in which he was permitted to consider the bill expires Sunday midnight. Since it is not ethical to act on Sunday, the governor is expected to make known his decision by midnight tomorrow.

GETTING VOTE IS HARD JOB

FOURTEEN CANDIDATES SIZE UP SENATORIAL SITUATION IN STATE

(By United Press)

St. Paul, June 1—Getting in the vote is the hardest job before 14 candidates battling for the late Senator Knute Nelson's seat.

The first farmer-labor meeting at New Ulm drew only 200 listeners—considered an ill omen.

It was the first of the "love-fests" of the farmer-labor trio seeking that party's nomination. Magnus Johnson, Charles A. Lindberg and Dr. L. K. Fritsche spoke from the same platform. New Ulm is Mayor Fritsche's home town. He expressed confidence that the fact that the farmers are busy should be blamed for the small showing yesterday.

The farmers are going to be busy, too, until the primary June 15, and they will have little time to spare up to the election July 16. The farmer-labor candidates do not need a heavy vote in the primary, but a heavy primary ballot would give them the assurance they seek for the election. Farmer-labor leaders feel that they took some of the hardest work out of the campaign by pitting the candidates together.

Their "love-fest" is going to be less interesting than a good fight.

In the republican ranks a smoky batile is already well-defined. Nine in the primary race creates an interesting situation that may bring out a big republican vote from progressives. A small republican vote, it is felt, would assure Governor Preus the nomination. A large republican vote is the hope of the supporters of Judge Oscar Hallam.

If the republicans can attract to their primary very much of the vote that went to the farmer-labor support in the race last fall, there will be a close contest.

For the first time, supporters of Preus will make a real fight for the St. Paul vote. Judge Oscar Hallam and J. A. A. Burnquist were expected to divide the St. Paul ballot, but Preus adherents today mapped a campaign to try to beat them both. This followed declarations that Hennepin county leaders had decided they could not throw their undivided support into the campaign for Governor Preus, as he expected. As a result, Minneapolis is an open battleground, with Judge Hallam getting the support which he had not anticipated.

BABCOCK TO GO TO WASHINGTON

The committee will fill five vacancies in its membership of twelve and fix the place for the annual meeting of the organization next December.

PROBE INTO CRASH OF JONES & BAKER BIG STOCK BROKERS

"LONG" ACCOUNT OF CUSTOMERS REPORTED TO TOTAL $10,000,000

"SHORT" ACCOUNTS RUN $2,000,000, BANK LOANS ABOUT $2,300,000

(By United Press)

New York, June 1.—Investigation into the crash of Jones & Baker, the largest stock brokers of the curb market here, and one of the largest firms ever to go into voluntary bankruptcy, was started here today by authorities.

In Chicago an effort will be made to determine whether the Illinois blue-sky law had been violated by the firm.

A "long" account of customers was reported to amount to $10,000,000, with "short" accounts running possibly to $2,000000, and bank loans totalling about $2,300,000.

Steps were taken by authorities to insure that there would be no obstacles to surmount in pursuing investigations whenever brokerage firms failed.

State's Attorney Winter and Unger have demanded of the receiver that all books be held intact for the probe of authorities and the curb market has been requested to preserve records of its investigation of the concern.

40 CHICAGO BROKERAGE FIRMS FACE INVESTIGATION

Chicago, June 1—A probe of 40 Chicago brokerage firms reported to be unstable was started today by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, following the failure of Jones & Baker of New York with a branch office serving 1500 customers here.

The Chicago Stock Exchange, the Investment Bankers Association and the Board of Trade are co-operating with Crowe in the probe. The investigation may possibly include 'bucketing" and blue-sky violations by some firms which have been under fire, Crowe said.

NEW CLUE FOUND IN HALL MURDER

FORMER SUSPECT ONCE AGAIN UNDER SCRUTINY—FARM WOMAN'S STORY CALLED UNTRUE

New Brunswick, N. J., June 1—County officials have unearthed a new suspect in their investigation into the murder last September of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, it was learned yesterday.

Officials admitted that a man previously questioned and who had presented an alibi, now was the subject of investigation. It was said his story, which earlier had caused his elimination as a suspect, had been found to be untrue in essential details.

Recent investigations had further convinced them that the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, a nearby farmer woman, was without foundation. Mrs. Gibson maintained she had seen a man and a woman, unidentified by her, commit the murders.

SCHANG MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR WEEKS

New York, June 1—Wally Schang, catcher of the New York Yanks, who was badly injured in a fall in Washington, may be out of the game for weeks, the Yanks office said. He is to be examined today by club physicians.

CLARA PHILLIPS IN GOOD SPIRITS; NEARING HER HOME

(By United Press)

Aboard the Sunset Limited, June 1—Her hopes rising higher every hour as she nears Los Angeles, Clara Phillips, convicted "hammer slayeress", was in good spirits today and confidently expected she would win a new trial and eventual freedom.

Laughing and jesting with her captors and with her sister, Etta Mae Jackson, the notorious prisoner appeared not the least disconcerted over word that her appeal for a new trial had been denied.

"I can't believe they would deny me a chance to establish my innocence," she protested calmly. I played the part of a good sport when I waived extradition from Honduras and agreed to return and face the music. Surely I deserve at least a new trial."

Early today the train passed through Tucson, Arizona, where the "tiger woman" was first arrested. She recalled the circumstances with a bitter smile. "I could have escaped then if I wanted to," she said. "But what was the use? I had nothing to fear from going back to Los Angeles. I have nothing to fear now. I could have escaped in Honduras, too, but I didn't want to. I want to come back to my own country. I stood trial once, and was found guilty. But now I have nothing to fear; I want to face my accusers and prove my innocence.

MEMORIAL TO YANKS DEDICATED IN PARIS

DIGNITARIES TAKE PART IN CEREMONIES OF UNVEILING OF MONUMENT

Paris, June 1—A permanent memorial to Americans who died in France was unveiled with impressive ceremonies at the American Procathedral, Holy Trinity. Bishop Brent officiated.

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, all the Allied ambassadors, Premier Poincare, Marshal Foch, Generals Magin and Gouraud and other high officials were in the front rank of the 2,000 spectators present when Bishop Brent read a dedication prayer.

The memorial, which covers a side of cloister wall of the procathedral, contains the insignia of all the American divisions which fought in France.

Mr. Herrick read a message from President Harding in which the latter wished that the new memorial would become "another altar to inspire a close and permanent union, through soldier friendship, between our nation and the peoples of Europe.

Marshal Foch spoke briefly.

There was a parade afterwards toward the Etoile, where France's unknown soldier lies buried.

(By United Press)

Paris, June 1—Introduction of Fascisti methods into French politics will be debated in the chamber of deputies, following the manhandling of the three socialist leaders who were shampooed with purple ink, forced to drink castor oil, and rolled in the mud. ## MINISTER MANOURY MAKES STATEMENT TO THE DEPUTIES

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS PROOF ROYALISTS ARE PLOTTING HUGE CONSPIRACY

CLAIMED POLICE HAVE SEIZED DOCUMENTS AND PLANS, PROBE CONTINUING

(By United Press)

Paris, June 1.—A royalist plot directed against the republic has spread throughout France, Minister of the Interior Maurice Manoury announced in the chamber of deputies late today.

The government has discovered proofs that the royalists all over France bound themselves together in a conspiracy directed at the government, he said.

Manoury declared police had seized documents and plans. An investigation is continuing.

The revelation came as a result of a government investigation following an attack upon three socialist leaders last night in which they were roughly handled. It was charged that this attack was instigated by royalists. Manorury declared that the government would act quickly and would petulantly suppress any further movement of French fascisti.

Adoption of Fascisti methods by French royalists caused a violent uproar in the chamber of deputies. The chamber voted confidence in the ability of the government to repress disorder and defend the republic, 379 to 191.

State's Attorney Winter and Unger have demanded of the receiver that all books be held intact for the probe of authorities and the curb market has been requested to preserve records of its investigation of the concern.

40 CHICAGO BROKERAGE FIRMS FACE INVESTIGATION

Chicago, June 1—A probe of 40 Chicago brokerage firms reported to be unstable was started today by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, following the failure of Jones & Baker of New York with a branch office serving 1500 customers here.

The Chicago Stock Exchange, the Investment Bankers Association and the Board of Trade are co-operating with Crowe in the probe. The investigation may possibly include 'bucketing" and blue-sky violations by some firms which have been under fire, Crowe said.

NEW CLUE FOUND IN HALL MURDER

FORMER SUSPECT ONCE AGAIN UNDER SCRUTINY—FARM WOMAN'S STORY CALLED UNTRUE

New Brunswick, N. J., June 1—County officials have unearthed a new suspect in their investigation into the murder last September of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, it was learned yesterday.

Officials admitted that a man previously questioned and who had presented an alibi, now was the subject of investigation. It was said his story, which earlier had caused his elimination as a suspect, had been found to be untrue in essential details.

Recent investigations had further convinced them that the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, a nearby farmer woman, was without foundation. Mrs. Gibson maintained she had seen a man and a woman, unidentified by her, commit the murders.

SCHANG MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR WEEKS

New York, June 1—Wally Schang, catcher of the New York Yanks, who was badly injured in a fall in Washington, may be out of the game for weeks, the Yanks office said. He is to be examined today by club physicians.

CLARA PHILLIPS IN GOOD SPIRITS; NEARING HER HOME

(By United Press)

Aboard the Sunset Limited, June 1—Her hopes rising higher every hour as she nears Los Angeles, Clara Phillips, convicted "hammer slayeress", was in good spirits today and confidently expected she would win a new trial and eventual freedom.

Laughing and jesting with her captors and with her sister, Etta Mae Jackson, the notorious prisoner appeared not the least disconcerted over word that her appeal for a new trial had been denied.

"I can't believe they would deny me a chance to establish my innocence," she protested calmly. I played the part of a good sport when I waived extradition from Honduras and agreed to return and face the music. Surely I deserve at least a new trial."

Early today the train passed through Tucson, Arizona, where the "tiger woman" was first arrested. She recalled the circumstances with a bitter smile. "I could have escaped then if I wanted to," she said. "But what was the use? I had nothing to fear from going back to Los Angeles. I have nothing to fear now. I could have escaped in Honduras, too, but I didn't want to. I want to come back to my own country. I stood trial once, and was found guilty. But now I have nothing to fear; I want to face my accusers and prove my innocence.

MEMORIAL TO YANKS DEDICATED IN PARIS

DIGNITARIES TAKE PART IN CEREMONIES OF UNVEILING OF MONUMENT

Paris, June 1—A permanent memorial to Americans who died in France was unveiled with impressive ceremonies at the American Procathedral, Holy Trinity. Bishop Brent officiated.

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, all the Allied ambassadors, Premier Poincare, Marshal Foch, Generals Magin and Gouraud and other high officials were in the front rank of the 2,000 spectators present when Bishop Brent read a dedication prayer.

The memorial, which covers a side of cloister wall of the procathedral, contains the insignia of all the American divisions which fought in France.

Mr. Herrick read a message from President Harding in which the latter wished that the new memorial would become "another altar to inspire a close and permanent union, through soldier friendship, between our nation and the peoples of Europe.

Marshal Foch spoke briefly.

There was a parade afterwards toward the Etoile, where France's unknown soldier lies buried.

FASCISTI METHODS IN FRENCH POLITICS

(By United Press)

Paris, June 1—Introduction of Fascisti methods into French politics will be debated in the chamber of deputies, following the manhandling of the three socialist leaders who were shampooed with purple ink, forced to drink castor oil, and rolled in the mud. Deputy Harriott said he would interpellate the government concerning the episode.

BARN DANCER DROPS DEAD NEAR WAVERLY

Minneapolis, June 1—Oscar Baril, aged 24, son of Phillip Baril of 1801 Irving avenue N., Minneapolis, dropped dead while attending a barn dance near Waverly, Minn. The dance was given last night on the farm of Martin McAlpine in Marysville township, near Waverly. Physicians attributed death to heart disease, aggravated by over exertion.

MINISTER MANOURY MAKES STATEMENT TO THE DEPUTIES

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS PROOF ROYALISTS ARE PLOTTING HUGE CONSPIRACY

CLAIMED POLICE HAVE SEIZED DOCUMENTS AND PLANS, PROBE CONTINUING

(By United Press)

Paris, June 1.—A royalist plot directed against the republic has spread throughout France, Minister of the Interior Maurice Manoury announced in the chamber of deputies late today.

The government has discovered proofs that the royalists all over France bound themselves together in a conspiracy directed at the government, he said.

Manoury declared police had seized documents and plans. An investigation is continuing.

The revelation came as a result of a government investigation following an attack upon three socialist leaders last night in which they were roughly handled. It was charged that this attack was instigated by royalists. Manorury declared that the government would act quickly and would petulantly suppress any further movement of French fascisti.

Adoption of Fascisti methods by French royalists caused a violent uproar in the chamber of deputies. The chamber voted confidence in the ability of the government to repress disorder and defend the republic, 379 to 191.

CONSTRUCTION BOOM NEARLY SIDETRACKED

(By United Press)

Chicago, June 1—Suspension of Chicago's $300,000,000 construction boom was averted today when an agreement was reached giving the thirteen open-shop building trades workers a 20 per cent pay increase.

The new wage is effective today, and increases the pay of the so-called "basic trades" to $1.25 an hour. Other workers will receive wages ranging from $1.95 an hour for stone planers to $1.37½ an hour for stone carvers.

GIANT MUSKIE BEFORE THE CLUB

Fish Measuring Over 50 Inches and Weighing 43 Lbs .Recently Mounted

NOW REPOSES IN GLASS CASE

At Request of R. R. Wise, It Was Loaned to 10,000 Lakes Association for 30 Days

The Crow Wing Game and Fish Protective club held a special meeting Thursday evening in the parlors of the Civic & Commerce Association for the purpose of taking up the matter of the disposal of the giant muskellunge which was presented to the club by D. A. Peterson and A. P. Cardle.

The big fish, measuring over fifty inches in length and weighing 43 pounds, has been mounted by Theodore Miller, and the club has placed it in a large glass case.

On motion it was unanimously voted that the request of R. R. Wise, president of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association, be granted. Mr. Wise asked that he be allowed the custody of the muskellunge for one month, beginning June 1st, for the purpose of taking it to St. Paul for exhibition purposes in the offices of the Association.

A general discussion of this matter brought out the opinion that Mr. Wise's request offered an excellent opportunity to advertise the possibilities of the Brainerd lake region and the following resolution was drawn up and unamimously adopted:

Resolution

Whereas, Crow Wing Game Protective Club of Brainerd, own a prized Mounted Muskellunge, weighing 43 lbs. and being 51½ inches in length, caught at Cross Lake, near Brainerd, Crow Wing County, Minnesota, and presented to the Club by A. P. Cardle and D. A. Peterson; and that

Whereas said Muskellunge is just one of the many of its kind in Crow Wing County, the gateway of the Ten Thousand Lakes, and

Whereas the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association has made a request that the fish be loaned to them for a period of Thirty (30) days,

Therefore, be it resolved, by the Crow Wing Game Protective Club, that said Muskellunge be loaned to the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota Association for a period of Thirty days to, and including July 1st, 1923.

Done at meeting of said Club, at Brainerd, Minnesota, May 31st, 1923.

MEET AT BAY LAKE

Missionary Society of First Congregational Church Entertained by Mrs. L. P. Hall

(Contributed)

The entertaining of the ladies of the Missionary society of First Congregational church, May 23rd by Mrs. L. P. Hall, at her home, Bay lake, proved most enjoyable and profitable. At the noon hour a delightful luncheon was served, by the hostess, and being in the order of buffet style, it was very interesting as each chose their places either at the well appointed tables in the dining room or on the veranda. The tables were adorned with choice and dainty wild flowers, which grow with elegance upon the Hall estate.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," says the adage, and by the eating upon this occasion was proven the deliciousness of the food for which "Sunnyside" is already characterized. A walk around the spacious grounds followed further revealing the charms of nature with their enticing beauty.

At 3 p. m. the ladies assembled in the drawing room and the usual opening exercise of the Missionary meeting were carried out followed by the old and ever new song, "It is good to be here," J. R. Sweney, sung by Mrs. C. A. Allbright, with Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone at the piano. Mrs. Allbright was in excellent voice and all present entered into the spirit of singing, each indeed feeling surely, "It is good to be here."

The following program, based upon "A resume of the study of India" was next in order.

India's. "Heritage of Nature," "Size, population and language," "Civilization," and "Progress" were spoken of by Mrs. J. A. Woodhead, Mrs. H. J. Spencer, Mrs. E. P. Slipp and Mrs. Harry Wilson, respectively. Mrs. Losey told the story of the erection of the most beautiful building in the world, the Taj Mahal, built during the region of Shan Jehan, Emperor of India, in memory of his favorite wife, Mumtaz-i-Mahal. Mrs. R. E. Cody, with her ready adaptability to portray, gave the charming little poem, "The Palm Tree," by John Greenleaf Whittier. A word-picture, by Mrs. Ingersoll, effectively showed the difference between Hinduism and Christianity, in the lives of two Hindu mothers when bereaved of a daughter.

"Why were you born in a Christian nation," by Mrs. Johnstone, showed the veracity of the statement, that if Paul had not heeded the Macedonian call to "Come over and help," we of the West might be in darkness, and looking to the East for the "Good News."

The chief feature of the program was a reading by Mrs. F. W. Wieland "How Papamma learned to say, Good morning Father," by Margaret T. Applegarth. Mrs. Wieland enthralled her audience with the vivid description of the gixty year old widow going on a pilgrimage over India in search for inner peace, and after three years visiting temples, crawling all day on her knees from shrine to shrine with every form of hardest sacrifice at last dropped down in exhaustion, with not a ray of hope ever felt. It was at this point she was found by the missionaries who lead her to a knowledge of the true God and thus peace and happiness was obtained and with simple faith and trust she passed into the presence of her Lord with the words, "Good morning Father." Mrs. Irma C. Hartley in her usual inspiring manner, spoke on, "India's women of yesterday and today," dur- entertained at dinner, in India, by a highcaste Hindu. Mrs. Hall lead a discussion on, "India's battle for Independence," which showed the state of unrest India is undergoing at the ing which she called to mind, while belief in woman's inferiority is a prepossession of the man-mind in India, yet India's most beautiful building in the world was built by man, in memory of womanhod. Miss Robinson gave the interesting account of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gowen being present time. As an evidence of the Missionary spirit, Mrs. J. M. Elder gave the unique "Jubilee Parable," from W. B. M. I. board rooms. In closing, Mrs. Addie Conrad, who had been asked to speak along the line of giving, agreeably entertained her hearers with a recitation on "Giving and doing," having chosen her own subject. The message evidently went to the hearts of the listeners for the collection, which followed, showed the largest received of any former amount.

Later all repaired to the veranda where the hostess further manifested her hospitality by the serving of lemonade. Grateful appreciation is tendered Mr. and Mrs. Hall in making it possible for the ladies of the Missionary society to be entertained under such pleasant circumstances.

The ladies also join in thanking the lady and gentlemen auto drivers who conveyed their occupants safely to and from the Missionary gathering.

Regret was expressed for the absence of Mrs. C. E. Cole, Mrs. C. W. Hoffman and Mrs. H. L. Jones who were unable to be present on account of illness.

Every spoonful of Kellogg's Bran helps free you from toxic poisons!

Constipation is largely responsible for auto-intoxication that leads to dangerous diseases unless it is not only checked but permanently relieved. Constipation, in fact, is the basis of a majority of human ailments which could be headed off if people would only help rid themselves of this serious, health-undermining condition, which can be easily done.

Constipation must be fought to a finish—not with pills and cathartics, which are dangerous to the delicate membranes of the intestines and temporary at best—but with nature's greatest cereal health food—Bran—Kellogg's Bran, which is as delicious as it is beneficial.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful in its work because it is ALL BRAN. And, to get permanent relief, ALL BRAN is a necessity, for it is the "bulk" of Kellogg's Bran that sweeps and purifies, ridding the system of poisons and bringing conditions to normal. Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; as much with each meal in chronic cases—and we guarantee that you will get relief permanently and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. You do not have to learn to like it. Eat it as a cereal or sprinkle on or mix with hot or cold cereals. Or, cook it with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls for each person. Kellogg's makes wonderful muffins, griddle cakes, raisin bread, macaroons, etc. Recipes on package.

Leading hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

COMMENCEMENT

COMMENCEMENT marks a place in the lives of students which is uniquely important. It is an end and a beginning, and one who looks upon it as an end has missed the real significance of the occasion. It may not be possible for all of those who graduate from high school to take up further studies in the colleges of the land, because of the expenses incident to such study, but it is always possible to continue studies even though class room facilities may be denied. Dr. Eliot's suggestion that ten minutes each day given to study will round out an education is a wise one.

The age in which we live calls for youth that has been thoroughly trained, but this does not determine that only those who pass through colleges will be able to do the tasks that lie ahead. Ambition has a great deal to do with success and the youth who is fired by ambition, even if a college course is denied him, may outstrip another who has had every educational opportunity. Ambition, dicipline and industry are essential to success. These largely guarantee success in this splendid country in which opportunity beckons.

The person who is prepared to do a certain work well is likley to be called upon to do that work. There is no doubt but that fortuitous circumstances sometimes play their part in life but in the main those who serve faithfully, work patiently and study diligently are destined to succeed in life's struggle.

There never was a day when youth might enter upon the future with more of the spirit of adventure. Youth is constitutionally adventurous and in an age that is characterized by the demands for change this spirit will be served. It is obvious that the problems resulting from the World war will not all have been solved before the graduates of 1923 take their places in the world order. They have spent their high school years in conditions that have been alarming to the staid and unbending. Whether or not the characteristics of the period have made for their larger good or have been inimical, will not be known until they have entered the stage of activity that lies ahead. Gloomy prophets suggest that their activities will lead downward toward the eclipse of some of the best American traditions. But, perhaps, this is the outcropping of the conceit of one generation that is not ready to concede that the next is likely to improve upon its record. Even though this be proved to be correct, this generation is responsible for the proclivities of the generation that is coming on. Young people do not make the conditions in which they are trained. They enter upon conditions that have been made by others. If those who are to continue America's program are influenced by certain flippant and irresponsible tendencies of the age they are not to be blamed for the influences that they did not create.

Hopeful prophets predict that the graduates of 1923 will do better than their fathers, that the nation's problems may be safely passed on to them, that they will overcome the influences that have surrounded them and for which they were not to blame, and that their regime will not only equal but surpass the reign of those who have not any too conspicuously succeeded in running this old world. These prophets trust the future and those who will people it, believing that they will bear the burdens bravely and well, with an adventurous spirit that is truly American and that will not be opportunist but consistent; and with this belief, they congratulate the class of 1923, bid them continue their studies, and bespeak for them an age of stirring challenges which they confidently believe they will bravely meet.

ECHOES OF MEMORIAL DAY

IT is natural that attention should be directed to the messages of the chief executive of the nation who speaks not only as a citizen but as a president. The voice of the president of the United States is to a certain extent the voice of the people of the United States, for when a president speaks he seeks to articulate the sentiment of the people whom he represents. Therefore, it may be taken for granted that the people will give special attention to the president's Memorial day message.

President Harding is not accused of being an idealist. This charge, which was brought against his predecessor, has been laid against him, and yet his speech at Arlington on Memorial day was that of an idealist who sees a good that he knows to be realizable only when the thoughts of men have been prepared so that they will be ready to follow the road to the ideal. The president of the United States believes that men should seek world peace and that for America it is "a God given duty to give our influence to establish the ways of peace throughout the world."

President Harding knows full well that peace will not come merely by hoping for it. To cry "peace" when there is no peace has been done in the past. The president is a practical idealist who believes that peace must be founded on righteousness and that it is the duty of the United States to assist in settling international disputes on the basis of justice and righteousness. One other thing the president is aware of, and that is that war is likely to be less popular when all are engaged in it and it is impossible for any to gain selfish advantage through the sufferings of their fellows. If it becomes necessary to fight for some principle the president insists that conscription shall not be of men alone but of money and industry as well. During the last war there were Americans who capitalized the blood of those who fell on foreign soil. This must not be again. Taking up the demand made by the American Legion some time ago, the president insists that in another war conscription must conscript all of the resources of the nation, using them as the government sees fit, for the cause to which the bodies of those who face the horrors of war are dedicated. In the past war has sat lightly on some while others have paid a heavy price, and equalizing the price is destined to check those who would stir up strife for the purpose of gaining a personal advantage and a selfish profit. Without profit to the few the few will be less inclined to invite the suffering of the many.

Not for the first time in history are people talking about ending war. So they talked after Waterloo, and shortly before the World war Norman Angell in his book, "The Great Illusion," seemed to prove that a world war was economically impossible. Therefore, by seeking to encourage a sense of world obligation, by insisting that disputes be brought to the test of righteousness and justice and by demanding that profit be taken out of war, President Harding has presented the difficulties that lie on the road to peace. Without righteousness and justice there can be no peace.

THE STARS AND STRIPES

FEW think that citizens who fail to uncover when the flag goes by are deliberately refusing to remove their hats. It is much more likely that this is a matter of neglect than one of deliberation.

There are persons who refuse to salute the flag because they are unwilling to do any of those things that are proper and that are expected of good citizens and gentlemen. Others hate to make a show of their emotions, and yet others feel that in saluting the flag they are sacrificing their personal liberty. To these latter personal liberty consists in being a boor and neglecting those little courtesies and formalities that are held to be a mark of polite society.

One thing should stand out when this matter is considered. In saluting the flag one pays due respect to American history, honors the memory of those who have helped to make American history, pays a tribute of respect to all those who have died for American principles and expresses an appreciation of American citizenship that reflects honor on the one making the salute. It is quite true that the mere form of uncovering as the flag goes by is nothing in itself, except in so far as the form is shot through with appreciation of America. A handshake, saying good morning, a wedding ring or a sacrament may be nothing more than a formality or they may be made to minister to the highest ends of character and life. Many may get along without these, neither giving nor receiving them; but, perhaps, they do not get along so well without them as they imagine. By such things people express themselves, and by uncovering heads before the flag, folks do not degrade themselves. To be allowed to salute the Stars and Stripes is not humiliating; it is a glorious privilege. He who honors his flag honors his country and himself.

EXECUTIONS are still the order of the day in Ireland. Those who think that peace may be made to order may find a lesson in Ireland today. The qualities that have made Irishmen great have made of Ireland a graveyard.

STRANGE monsters are reported in various parts of the earth. Everything has not yet been catalogued even by this "tabulating" age.

ONE of the disturbing names in America today is Henry Ford. Will he or won't he? And if he does, what then?

TRUNK HIGHWAYS ARE FAIRLY GOOD

St. Paul, June 1.—Minnesota trunk highways-so-called Babcock roads marked with official numbers on yellow stars—as a whole are in good condition, acording to the weekly bulletin issued today by the state highway department.

Maintenance superintendents in sixteen districts making the condition reports to the department announced that the season's work is well in hand and usual standards will be maintained in spite of the heavy increase in traffic if weather is favorable. Gravel surfacing on some heavy traffic sections already is beginning to show the effects of the grind, but general conditions are good.

The finger ring is the oldest ornament. In Genesis Joseph is mentioned as receiving a ring from Pharaoh. This was about 1450 B. C. They have been found on mummies of an earlier date. Homer mentions "bracelets and chains" on his heroes, but does not mention rings. Homer was about 1000 B. C.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT, IS FIERY, ITCHY OR ROUGH, USE SULPHUR

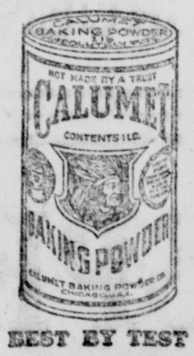

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.—Advt.

COMMENCEMENT

COMMENCEMENT marks a place in the lives of students which is uniquely important. It is an end and a beginning, and one who looks upon it as an end has missed the real significance of the occasion. It may not be possible for all of those who graduate from high school to take up further studies in the colleges of the land, because of the expenses incident to such study, but it is always possible to continue studies even though class room facilities may be denied. Dr. Eliot's suggestion that ten minutes each day given to study will round out an education is a wise one.

The age in which we live calls for youth that has been thoroughly trained, but this does not determine that only those who pass through colleges will be able to do the tasks that lie ahead. Ambition has a great deal to do with success and the youth who is fired by ambition, even if a college course is denied him, may outstrip another who has had every educational opportunity. Ambition, dicipline and industry are essential to success. These largely guarantee success in this splendid country in which opportunity beckons.

The person who is prepared to do a certain work well is likley to be called upon to do that work. There is no doubt but that fortuitous circumstances sometimes play their part in life but in the main those who serve faithfully, work patiently and study diligently are destined to succeed in life's struggle.

There never was a day when youth might enter upon the future with more of the spirit of adventure. Youth is constitutionally adventurous and in an age that is characterized by the demands for change this spirit will be served. It is obvious that the problems resulting from the World war will not all have been solved before the graduates of 1923 take their places in the world order. They have spent their high school years in conditions that have been alarming to the staid and unbending. Whether or not the characteristics of the period have made for their larger good or have been inimical, will not be known until they have entered the stage of activity that lies ahead. Gloomy prophets suggest that their activities will lead downward toward the eclipse of some of the best American traditions. But, perhaps, this is the outcropping of the conceit of one generation that is not ready to concede that the next is likely to improve upon its record. Even though this be proved to be correct, this generation is responsible for the proclivities of the generation that is coming on. Young people do not make the conditions in which they are trained. They enter upon conditions that have been made by others. If those who are to continue America's program are influenced by certain flippant and irresponsible tendencies of the age they are not to be blamed for the influences that they did not create.

Hopeful prophets predict that the graduates of 1923 will do better than their fathers, that the nation's problems may be safely passed on to them, that they will overcome the influences that have surrounded them and for which they were not to blame, and that their regime will not only equal but surpass the reign of those who have not any too conspicuously succeeded in running this old world. ### Crowd Thrilled When Lloyd Performed Climb

Wherever "Safety Last," Harold Lloyd's latest feature comedy for Pathe is shown, it unquestionably will win the applause of the entire audience. But even the most enthusiastic applause can't compare with the cheering of the crowd that witnessed the filming of the climb in "Safety Last."

Somehow the news got about that the famous comedian was to use the Bank of Italy building at the corner of First and Spring Streets in Los Angeles to film a scene for one of his forthcoming productions.

When the climb was finally completed the crow relaxed into veritable ovation, and the gratifying demonstration when Harold Lloyd stepped into his car to leave, surely must have been some compensation for the long hours of tedious training necessary to perform the clever feats in "Safety Last." This great comedy will be shown at the New Park on Saturday and Sunday.

A review clipped from the Minneapolis Journal:

"Safety Last," Harold Lloyd's latest comedy, has proved so successful at the Strand that it is to be held over for a second week. The film is indisputably the best comedy of the year. Perhaps it would be better to call it "The Cat and the Canary" of the screen for the thrills aroused by the spectacle of Lloyd climbing up the side of the building arouse as many screams as the mysteries of that melodrama.

Almost any misunderstanding can be smoothed out at the proper time and in the right way. If things could be kept smoothed out, instead of being allowed to continue and rankle, men would get along better with one another.

Moabite Stone.

The "Real Moabite Stone" is a black basaltic block, unearthed at Diban in 1868, by Rev. F. A. Kliev, 3.8 feet by 1.2 feet in dimensions, which contains 34 lines in the Phoenician language. These chronicle the descent of Mesha, king of Moab, from Ahab, king of Israel. At least two replicas of this valuable stone have been in Paris.

SQUIRE EDGEGATE—His Last Remark Might be Construed Two Ways---Do You Get It?

BY LOUIS RICHARD

Rodolph Valentino at the Lyceum Sunday

Rodolph Valentino in the Paramount Picture "The Young Rajah."

Here is Rodolph Valentino the magnificent first as a virile American college athlete, then as a gorgeous Prince of India braving death for the charming Yankee girl (Wanda Hawley) the girl he loves. This latest Valentino picture will open at the Lyceum Sunday.

Crowd Thrilled When Lloyd Performed Climb

Wherever "Safety Last," Harold Lloyd's latest feature comedy for Pathe is shown, it unquestionably will win the applause of the entire audience. But even the most enthusiastic applause can't compare with the cheering of the crowd that witnessed the filming of the climb in "Safety Last."

Somehow the news got about that the famous comedian was to use the Bank of Italy building at the corner of First and Spring Streets in Los Angeles to film a scene for one of his forthcoming productions.

When the climb was finally completed the crow relaxed into veritable ovation, and the gratifying demonstration when Harold Lloyd stepped into his car to leave, surely must have been some compensation for the long hours of tedious training necessary to perform the clever feats in "Safety Last." This great comedy will be shown at the New Park on Saturday and Sunday.

A review clipped from the Minneapolis Journal:

"Safety Last," Harold Lloyd's latest comedy, has proved so successful at the Strand that it is to be held over for a second week. The film is indisputably the best comedy of the year. Perhaps it would be better to call it "The Cat and the Canary" of the screen for the thrills aroused by the spectacle of Lloyd climbing up the side of the building arouse as many screams as the mysteries of that melodrama.

Moabite Stone.

The "Real Moabite Stone" is a black basaltic block, unearthed at Diban in 1868, by Rev. F. A. Kliev, 3.8 feet by 1.2 feet in dimensions, which contains 34 lines in the Phoenician language. These chronicle the descent of Mesha, king of Moab, from Ahab, king of Israel. At least two replicas of this valuable stone have been in Paris.

LIONS ENTERTAIN VETERANS MAY 30

George G. Glick Was the Principal Speaker at Noon Day Luncheon

HE PRAISED SOLDIER SPIRIT

Commander Albert Fox, Carl Adams and Rev. Errington in Responses

Members of the G. A. R. and the Spanish War veterans were guests of the Lions club at a Memorial Day luncheon Wednesday noon.

George G. Glick, who gave the memorial address at the cemetery was the principal speaker at the luncheon. Mr. Glick took for his subject, "What am I," bringing out the relationship which should exist between every citizen and his neighbor.

The speaker dwelt upon the unselfishness which characterized every soldier in all of the wars in which the United States has participated, and of the same characteristic that has dominated this country in her attitude toward other nations.

In contrast to this, the selfishness among nations, between individuals, in business and in the home, was brought out. One of the greatest human tragedies is the selfish person who finds himself without friends as soon as people learn of his motives. The really big task among Americans said Mr. Glick, is to get rid of this selfishness and generously dedicate ourselves to the common good.

Two great powers for good in this country were emphasized, one the right use of the ballot, the other, public sentiment properly used.

Commander Albert Fox of the G. A. R. thanked the Lions for the luncheon. He said that Memorial day was usually in commemoration of the dead, but this ocassion was in honor of the living.

Carl Adams, in behalf of the Spanish War veterans thanked the club for its hospitality, and asked that it use its energies toward bringing about a better feeling in Brainerd, and a more united effort on the part of all citizens.

Chaplin Fred Errington of the American Legion, lauded the people of the city for the way they turned out to the exercises of the morning, and paid a fine tribute to the soldiers of all wars for their service.

In addition to the veterans, other visitors included Mayor Con O'Brien, W. E. Haydon, W. C. Cobb of the local Rotary club, F. W. Nevins of the Minneapolis Rotary, Henry I. Cohen and A. S. Peterson.

"The Northwestern Bell" Doing Its Share to Popularize, 10,000 Lakes

JUNE NUMBER LUXURIANT

Embellished With Numerous Pictures Depicting Vacation Pleasures

"The Northwestern Bell," a monthly magazine issued by and for the employees of the telephone company by that name, is doing its share toward popularizing and giving publicity to Minnesota's lake region.

In the June number of this magazine, which by the way covers some five or six states, there are special articles with numerous pictures depicting the vacation pleasures among the ten thousand lakes.

Brainerd is especially well advertised, since the entire cover of the magazine is a beautiful lake scene with the caption showing that is was taken near our city.

On the first page of the reading matter there is a fine view of Pelican lake at Breezy Point lodge, showing the aquatic sports possible at that popular resort.

The top of the third page is devoted to a large picture of Bay lake, with a boat in the immediate foreground in which Dan Lawrence of the Y. M. C. A. and O. J. Bouma are making the most of the opportunity with rod and reel.

There are fifteen excellent lake scenes in all, most of which were furnished through the courtesy of the Northern Pacific Railway Co. and by employees of the Northwestern Bell, who are anxious that their coworkers further south spend their vacation time in 'The Land of the Sky-blue Waters." The interesting manner in which the article is written will do much in conjunction with the pictures to accomplish this.

"ROBIN HOOD"

Stupendous Production Booked by George Irwin of New Park Theatre

Manager George Irwin of the New Park theatre has succeeded in booking what has been characterized as the most stupendous motion picture of the decade, Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood."

This production has been secured at an extraordinary expense, and will be shown for five days at the New Park in the near future.

It is hoped that the people of Brainerd will appreciate the effort which has been put forth by the management of this theatre in obtaining "Robin Hood" and avail themselves of the opportunity to view the really big success of the season.

The New Park is to be commended for its ability to secure pictures of this calibre. Much space has been used in the leading periodicals of late in lauding Douglas Fairbanks' work in "Robin Hood."

Those who were delighted in this actor's portrayal of "The Three Musketeers" will like "Robin Hood" even better. His ability has been taxed to the limit in this production, but how he responded can only be realized by witnessing the performance.

The New Park is fortunate in securing pictures of special merit of late, playing many of them in advance of the leading twin city theaters. This is an unusual condition in which other cities of the state are not so fortunate.

LIONS ENTERTAIN VETERANS MAY 30

George G. Glick Was the Principal Speaker at Noon Day Luncheon

HE PRAISED SOLDIER SPIRIT

Commander Albert Fox, Carl Adams and Rev. Errington in Responses

Members of the G. A. R. and the Spanish War veterans were guests of the Lions club at a Memorial Day luncheon Wednesday noon.

George G. Glick, who gave the memorial address at the cemetery was the principal speaker at the luncheon. Mr. Glick took for his subject, "What am I," bringing out the relationship which should exist between every citizen and his neighbor.

The speaker dwelt upon the unselfishness which characterized every soldier in all of the wars in which the United States has participated, and of the same characteristic that has dominated this country in her attitude toward other nations.

In contrast to this, the selfishness among nations, between individuals, in business and in the home, was brought out. One of the greatest human tragedies is the selfish person who finds himself without friends as soon as people learn of his motives. The really big task among Americans said Mr. Glick, is to get rid of this selfishness and generously dedicate ourselves to the common good.

Two great powers for good in this country were emphasized, one the right use of the ballot, the other, public sentiment properly used.

Commander Albert Fox of the G. A. R. thanked the Lions for the luncheon. He said that Memorial day was usually in commemoration of the dead, but this ocassion was in honor of the living.

Carl Adams, in behalf of the Spanish War veterans thanked the club for its hospitality, and asked that it use its energies toward bringing about a better feeling in Brainerd, and a more united effort on the part of all citizens.

Chaplin Fred Errington of the American Legion, lauded the people of the city for the way they turned out to the exercises of the morning, and paid a fine tribute to the soldiers of all wars for their service.

In addition to the veterans, other visitors included Mayor Con O'Brien, W. E. Haydon, W. C. Cobb of the local Rotary club, F. W. Nevins of the Minneapolis Rotary, Henry I. Cohen and A. S. Peterson.

BIG PREMIUM ON FISTS OVER BRAINS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, June 1.—Pondering over the premium that modern times are putting on brawny fists, a New England scientist recently committed suicide. He couldn't see the justice of conditions which gave two big heavyweights more money for fighting thirty-three minutes than he had been able to earn in a lifetime.

Perhaps his protest against the workings of fate was a bit drastic and futile. He was a master in a profession that has no appeal to the mob. That appeal to the mob means money. There is no kick in watching the skilled hands of a scientist in the laboratory and there is a kick for the mob in watching two giants battle each other about the ring.

Bankers, as well as scientists and educators, can ponder over the rise of pugilism to the world's most paying profession.

Jack Dempsey, at an age when an aspiring young banker is hardly off a high stool, has a fortune. He has made so much out of nothing that he has been able to buy large gobs of valuable real estate and a coal mine.

Before the end of the year, Dempsey probably will be able to buy another coal mine.

The heavyweight champion has before him close to one and a half million dollars, and all he has to do is take the money and the few risks that the taking perhaps involves.

Dempsey will get no less than $300,000 for fighting Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, on July 4.

If the bout is a tremendous financial success, Dempsey will get more. His manager, Jack Kearns, saw to it when the contract was drawn that the promoters would not make the money that Tex Rickard made off the Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

The champion will get an extra cut on every dollar that the promoters get over a certain sum—if they get it.

After the Gibbons bout, if he wins, Dempsey will fight Harry Wills some time around Labor Day in the vicinity of New York.

It will be more than a million dollar fight, and Dempsey ought to get a half million or more, as his manager is said to be interested in the promotion of the bout, if he is not actually arranging to put it on.

Dempsey, then, if he wins, will go to South America to fight Luis Firpo, and for the "risks" that he will be forced to assume in defending his title among the home folks of a foreigner, the champion will get at least another $500,000.

TOM MILTON, JR., MAY GET MOTORIZED KIDDY KAR AS PRIZE SHARE

St. Paul, June 1—There's a young lad in St. Paul who's mighty proud of his daddy.

His name is Tommy Milton, Jr.

Heat and excitement at Indianapolis wasn't considered good for Tommy, Jr., and he remained with "grandma", Mrs. J. E. Giantvalley. But he was among the first to hear that "daddy" had won the big Memorial day sweepstakes race.

As a reward for good behavior, he's going to have a kiddy kar and maybe it will be motorized.

SIKI TURNS DOWN OFFER TO BOX KID NORFOLK

Paris, June 1—Battling Siki has refused an offer of $10,000 cabled him by Tex Richard for a bout with Kid Norfolk late in July or early in August. The reason advanced for the refusal is said that Siki is to meet Marcel Nilles in Paris on July 8, but the Senegalese confided to his friends that he would never again fight outside of continental Europe. He believes he was unjustly treated when he met Mike McTigue in Dublin.

Tilden's Eyes Improve

Philadelphia, June 1—William Tilden has been suffering since Sunday from conjunctivitis, an affection of the eye. For 24 hours his sight seriously was affected, but he said later that he was greatly improved and expected the trouble to clear up in a day or so.

Merrifield Rabbit Chokers Beat N. P. Scrap Dock Nine

News was just brought to Brainerd via special courier from the far reaches of Merrifield where on Memorial Day afternoon the Merrifield Rabbi; Chokers battled the N. P. Scrap Dock nine to a sanquinary finish, the score reading 22 for the aforesaid Rabbit Chokers and 13, or the short end for the dock men.

The Chokers had as their batery Niles and Parker, two of the leading citizens of the metropolis of Merrifield. The dock men had as their heaver, Tom Burke, while the receiving end was Bushaway.

The umpire, after the battle, could not be identified, so his name is not printed.

Victor Bushaway is the business manager of the dock men and he is looking for more games. Address him at Brainerd.

COLUMBIA STAR BEATS JOIE RAY BY 5 YARDS

Pat Kennedy of Larabida council, Knights of Columbus, finished third, about five yards behind Ray. Higgings' time for the mile was 4:15 3-5. Ray was clocked at 4:16 4-5.

Condensed Milk Preferred.

Sweetened condensed milk, diluted with hot water, has won a place as a highly esteemed drink among the Chinese of the Swatow district. They prefer this mixture to the excellent fresh milk, containing a high percentage of butterfat, available from the water buffaloes and other cattle maintained in considerable numbers by the farmers.

BIG PREMIUM ON FISTS OVER BRAINS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, June 1.—Pondering over the premium that modern times are putting on brawny fists, a New England scientist recently committed suicide. He couldn't see the justice of conditions which gave two big heavyweights more money for fighting thirty-three minutes than he had been able to earn in a lifetime.

Perhaps his protest against the workings of fate was a bit drastic and futile. He was a master in a profession that has no appeal to the mob. That appeal to the mob means money. There is no kick in watching the skilled hands of a scientist in the laboratory and there is a kick for the mob in watching two giants battle each other about the ring.

Bankers, as well as scientists and educators, can ponder over the rise of pugilism to the world's most paying profession.

Jack Dempsey, at an age when an aspiring young banker is hardly off a high stool, has a fortune. He has made so much out of nothing that he has been able to buy large gobs of valuable real estate and a coal mine.

Before the end of the year, Dempsey probably will be able to buy another coal mine.

The heavyweight champion has before him close to one and a half million dollars, and all he has to do is take the money and the few risks that the taking perhaps involves.

Dempsey will get no less than $300,000 for fighting Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, on July 4.

If the bout is a tremendous financial success, Dempsey will get more. His manager, Jack Kearns, saw to it when the contract was drawn that the promoters would not make the money that Tex Rickard made off the Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

The champion will get an extra cut on every dollar that the promoters get over a certain sum—if they get it.

After the Gibbons bout, if he wins, Dempsey will fight Harry Wills some time around Labor Day in the vicinity of New York.

It will be more than a million dollar fight, and Dempsey ought to get a half million or more, as his manager is said to be interested in the promotion of the bout, if he is not actually arranging to put it on.

Dempsey, then, if he wins, will go to South America to fight Luis Firpo, and for the "risks" that he will be forced to assume in defending his title among the home folks of a foreigner, the champion will get at least another $500,000.

TOM MILTON, JR., MAY GET MOTORIZED KIDDY KAR AS PRIZE SHARE

St. Paul, June 1—There's a young lad in St. Paul who's mighty proud of his daddy.

His name is Tommy Milton, Jr.

Heat and excitement at Indianapolis wasn't considered good for Tommy, Jr., and he remained with "grandma", Mrs. J. E. Giantvalley. But he was among the first to hear that "daddy" had won the big Memorial day sweepstakes race.

As a reward for good behavior, he's going to have a kiddy kar and maybe it will be motorized.

SIKI TURNS DOWN OFFER TO BOX KID NORFOLK

Paris, June 1—Battling Siki has refused an offer of $10,000 cabled him by Tex Richard for a bout with Kid Norfolk late in July or early in August. The reason advanced for the refusal is said that Siki is to meet Marcel Nilles in Paris on July 8, but the Senegalese confided to his friends that he would never again fight outside of continental Europe. He believes he was unjustly treated when he met Mike McTigue in Dublin.

Tilden's Eyes Improve

Philadelphia, June 1—William Tilden has been suffering since Sunday from conjunctivitis, an affection of the eye. For 24 hours his sight seriously was affected, but he said later that he was greatly improved and expected the trouble to clear up in a day or so.

Merrifield Rabbit Chokers Beat N. P. Scrap Dock Nine

News was just brought to Brainerd via special courier from the far reaches of Merrifield where on Memorial Day afternoon the Merrifield Rabbit Chokers battled the N. P. Scrap Dock nine to a sanquinary finish, the score reading 22 for the aforesaid Rabbit Chokers and 13, or the short end for the dock men.

The Chokers had as their batery Niles and Parker, two of the leading citizens of the metropolis of Merrifield. The dock men had as their heaver, Tom Burke, while the receiving end was Bushaway.

The umpire, after the battle, could not be identified, so his name is not printed.

Victor Bushaway is the business manager of the dock men and he is looking for more games. Address him at Brainerd.

COLUMBIA STAR BEATS JOIE RAY BY 5 YARDS

New York, June 1—Walter Higgins, Columbia university track star, finished five yards ahead of Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C. in the one mile invitation race, the feature event of the Fordham university track meet, at the Yankee stadium. Pat Kennedy of Larabida council, Knights of Columbus, finished third, about five yards behind Ray. Higgings' time for the mile was 4:15 3-5. Ray was clocked at 4:16 4-5.

Condensed Milk Preferred.

Sweetened condensed milk, diluted with hot water, has won a place as a highly esteemed drink among the Chinese of the Swatow district. They prefer this mixture to the excellent fresh milk, containing a high percentage of buttertat, available from the water buffaloes and other cattle maintained in considerable numbers by the farmers.

HARSH OLD DAYS

Cruel Statutes Under Which Our Forefathers Lived.

Punishment by Burning Alive Too Common a Thing to Cause Comment a Few Centuries Ago.

Along about the second day after a judge has pronounced sentence in some sensational case in the British court of justice, people begin to speculate just what would have happened to the prisoner had he or she lived a hundred years ago. Enterprising editors detailed reporters to dig up parallel cases, and as British justice of the Eighteenth century was a primitive affair these make enlightening reading.

In one recent week sentence was pronounced in three murder cases, each one ending with the judge donning his black cap, and in each case a woman was in the dock. In the case which has aroused the most comment Mrs. Thompson, who was found guilty of helping to murder her husband, would have been burned at the stake had she lived a hundred and forty years ago.

In those days the murder of a husband by a wife, of an employer by a servant or a bishop by a clergyman, was called petty treason; that is, the murder of a superior to whom the offender owed special fidelity or from whom he received special benefits.

If a man killed his wife that was not petty treason, it was merely murder. High treason, of course, was and is an offense against the king, or even at one time against his coinage, makers of "bad" money being accused under this head.

In the 1700s men convicted of high or petty treason were hanged, drawn and quartered, while women convicted of either offense were burned at the stake. This difference in sentence was thought to be a great privilege to women. The law said "As the decency due to the sex forbids the exposure and public mangling of their bodies, the sentence is to be drawn to the gallows and there to be burned alive."

In later years the cruelty of this punishment was mitigated by strangling the criminal before the flames reached her. A stake about ten feet high was planted in the ground and the culprit suspended from an iron ring so that the faggots were kindled under her feet.

Parish registers in various parts of the country contain records of cases of burning of wives as late as 1782, that is 140 years ago. The parish register of a Somerset village contains this entry under "Marriages": "5 March, 1753, John Bruford, of West Monckton, to Susannah Davis, of Huntsville. An unfortunate marriage. She poisoned him and was burned for so doing at Wells the ensuing autumn."

An Essex register contains the following: "2 August, 1753, Thomas Ockendon, of this parish, was buried at Canewdon after he had been barbarously murdered by his own wife the Tuesday before. She was burned at Chelmsford for the said murder."

It was not until 1790 that the punishment of burning for either petty or high treason was abolished and hanging substituted. Forty years later the offense of petty treason was merged in that of willful murder, and from 1830 to this day there has been no legal difference between the murder of a wife by a husband and that of a husband by a wife.

To Each Man His Duty.

In the morning when thou risest unwillingly, let this thought be present: "I am rising to the work of a human being. Why, then, am I dissatisfied if I am going to do the things for which I exist, and for which I was brought into the world? Or, have I been made for this, to lie in the bed-clothes, and keep myself warm?"—Marcus Aurelius.

"Grocery" Stores.

Webster's dictionary gives as one of the meanings of the word "grocery" in the United States a "retail grocer's store." It is quite correct to use it in this sense and to pluralize it, so as to make it unnecessary to say "grocery stores," just as we have "bakeries," etc.

THE EMPTY ROOM

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

DORA had been at her married sister's less than a week when she realized that her long-looked-forward-to visit was to prove disappointing.

Helen had not changed with marriage. She was still the pleasure-seeking, lovable Helen—not as concerned, perhaps, regarding the pleasure of others.

Of course Marmee—which was the girl's pet name for their tiny invalid mother—and Dora, in their most confidential moments, were too loyal to admit Helen's selfishness; but mother would say in that laughing little way of hers, "Dora is my Cinderella girl. Helen and Clarice are the proud sisters."

Helen and Clarice had both married fortune-favored men from the nearby city. And Dora, who had of necessity, remained at home to "keep the home fires burning," as it were, and to look after the comfort of dear frail Marmee—found no time for mating, or even for a chance to meet her prince.

When Helen sent the invitation to visit in her fine house near the city park, and when it had been arranged that Clarice would spare that time to pay her mother a visit also, Dora was enthusiastically happy. Marmee and she spent happy hours planning and making the simple frocks which were to isolated Dora altogether lovely.

Helen's car had come to carry her to town, and the pretty room assigned to Dora's use was directly next to that of her two young nephews.

"Help," Helen complained, "was so very difficult to get. It would relieve her a great deal if Dora could be near the children at night. Sometimes Bobby would cry out in his sleep with a bad dream. And sometimes Donnie wanted a drink of water.

Helen belonged to a number of clubs. Sarah, in the kitchen, just could not be persuaded to pay attention to the children during her absence; and Kitty, the maid, was a run-around creature, never to be found when needed.

Dora found that much of her time was spent entertaining her small nephews.

The pretty frocks which Marmee and she had fashioned were laid aside in place of substantial dresses which would bear the touch of small, grimy fingers.

It was on a rather wearisome afternoon that Dora took the little boys across to the park. Beneath the trees ran a bridle path and it was their delight to watch the beautiful saddled horses and their riders. Dora wore a ruffled dimity this afternoon and its pink matched the color of her soft cheeks. Bobby's translation of the name Dora was "Mora"—he could not speak his d's, and the word in baby tongue had the sound of "mother." Donnie, as usual, imitated his brother.

"Mora," Bobby cried, "me ride horse. Black horse, right away."

"Dear," Dora painstakingly explained, "Dora has no horse for Bobby to ride. Watch them as they go by and be a good boy."

"Won't be good boy," wailed Bobby, "want to ride horse-back."

"Ride horse-back," Donnie took up the cry.

A rider, coming slowly, drew up his black horse, amused. Gleefully the children greeted him. "Want to ride," begged Bobby. Do you suppose," he asked, "that the youngsters would be satisfied if I were to give them a little trot? I could take one at a time before me down the path."

"Why," Dora stammered, "I could not think of allowing you to interrupt your ride. You are very kind—"

"Mora, please," begged Bobby. "Please, Mora," repeated Donnie.

"I assure you," the man said, "I am no kidnaper. My name is Webster—Warren Webster. I live opposite, over there, across from the park."

Dora flushed becomingly. Warren Webster! Had she not heard of this young man of many possessions, of his philanthropies, of the young women who endeavored to gain his favor.

Helen had called him—crudely, Dora thought—"the matrimonial prize."

And here he was, lifting Bobby up before him in the saddle, then cantering back presently for Donnie. And again, and still again, while she, each time smilingly and gratefully greeted him from her place of waiting on the park bench.

As Warren Webster was a friend of Bobby's father, it was natural for Dora to inform him of her own relationship, and of her visit to this married sister in town. Mr. Webster was kindly interested—one might even have said eagerly interested.

When Dora led her happy charges back across the park it was with the understanding that all three were to enjoy a long drive the following afternoon in Warren Webster's fine car. And later, it was he who, in the same big car, drove Dora back home and entered with her, the neat, familiar room.

"I am sure," he told the mother that evening as he and Dora sat with her in the porch, "that we three are going to be a very happy family. But at first, you know—for it was love at first sight upon my part—at first those children frightened me with their cries of 'mother.' I feared that the one woman I had ever wanted was already a wife. But now all is as it should be."

Little Marmee smiled. "My Cinderella found her prince," she said, "coming down a bridle path on his charger."

ORIGINATOR OF "UNCLE SAM"

Government Worker Said to Have Created the Phrase Following the War of 1812.

This is one story of how the expression, "Uncle Sam," popular name for the United States government, is said to have originated: Immediately after the declaration of war against England in 1812, Elbert Anderson of New York, then a contractor, visited Troy, N. Y., where there was concentrated and where he purchased a large quantity of provisions, beef, pork and so forth. Samuel Wilson, an inspector of these articles at that place, was generally known as "Uncle Sam." He superintended, in person, a large number of workmen, who on this occasion, were employed in overhauling the provisions purchased by the contractor for the army. The casks were marked "E. A.—U. S." This work fell to the lot of a facetious fellow in the employ of the inspector, who, on being asked by some of his fellow workmen the meaning of the mark (for the letters U. S., for the United States, were then entirely new to them), said he did not know unless it meant "Elbert Anderson" and "Uncle Sam"—alluding exclusively, then, to the said "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The joke took among the workmen and passed currently; and "Uncle Sam" himself, being present, was occasionally rallied by them on the increasing extent of his possessions.

CLAIMS EARTH IS TOPSHAPED

French Scientist Puts Forth Theory That Will Be Found More or Less Interesting.

A French scientist finds in the great depths of the Arctic ocean an argument tending to show that the earth is slightly topshaped, the protuberance corresponding to the point of the top being at the South pole. This, he thinks, would explain the different results arrived at by the various measurements of astronomers and geodesists. The differences are very small in comparison with the entire bulk of the globe, yet they are readily appreciable, and one of the explanations that has been suggested for them is that the earth is tetrahedral in form. But the Frenchman thinks the topshape theory is preferable. The fact that to an eye looking at the earth from a point in space it would not sensibly differ in appearance from a true sphere shows how refined are the methods of science which enable men living on the surface of the globe to detect variations in its general contour.—New York Herald.

Theory of Relativity.

Einstein is said to have made the statement that only 12 men could understand his theory. This statement referred to it in its mathematical entirety, and not to a common sense understanding. In a general way everyone understands Newton's law of gravitation, although to grasp it fully one must know the calculus. In a similar way the layman can understand the relativity theory, stated by a famous mathematician to be: "One cannot determine the speed of any object moving at a uniform rate of speed in a straight line, by any experiment in motion or light, and the moving object changes its length in relation to speed and direction of its motion."

This theory had its forerunners in many countries, but is an outgrowth, more specifically, of the attempt to find the velocity of the earth's motion by a very delicate experiment with light. The theory also makes instantaneity a relative matter.

Saturday "Dress-Up" Day.

Saturdays once were almost universally pay days, but now, with many firms paying their help on other days, Saturdays have lost claim to that distinction. But another one still prevails, the New York Sun states. To the stenographer or girl clerk Saturdays are dress-up days. Even the most prim and most severely plain dresser blossoms forth on Saturday.

The system started through engagements for the afternoon Sadie, or Mamie, or Rose, wished to appear at her best when she met Tom, Dick or Harry, or whoever was going to take her to a movie or Coney Island.

When one of them quarreled with her particular beau and was without a companion for the afternoon could she admit it to the other girls? Certainly not. And so, whether an engagement awaits or not, the little stenographer dresses up every Saturday.

Looking Both Ways.

Billy Kane, an Irish hackman of Macon, Mo., was on the stand in a personal injury case. A man was suing the railroad, claiming he was hit through the negligence of the engine man. It was in evidence that three boys were standing on the edge of the platform as the train came in. The lawyer for the railroad was cross-examining Mr. Kane pretty severely, and the sharper he became the more exasperating seemed the witness' answers. Finally he demanded the witness tell him the exact position of those boys.

"Well, sir," replied Mr. Kane smoothly, "their backs was a-facing the east."

Cause for Worry.

A Sunday school teacher was telling the children of her class about the miracle of Christ changing the water into wine at the marriage feast of Cana. One little fellow jumped to the floor, saying: "Oh, that's nothing; my dad made some wine and then changed it into vinegar." Now dad's worried for fear the boy will get him in bad.

SECOND GLANCE

By GRACE CANFIELD

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"NO, I thank you," said Mr. Pelham gently; "prunes make me sneeze." His landlady, Miss Caruth, looked up in surprise, to Mr. Pelham's gratification. His first experiment had worked.

When he reached his office that morning, he walked to his desk, and opening his drawer, laid his hat inside instead of hanging it on the wall.

"It's a theory of mine," he explained to Evelyn that evening, when she questioned him about the odd color effect of his red-clocked hose and his purple tie, "I have decided to be famous, as the quickest way to wealth." He pondered a moment. "To be a novelist would be best, I think."

A speculative gleam came into Evelyn's lovely blue eyes, but she was not one to criticise without being sure of her ground.

"Won't you please explain it to me?" she asked, with deceptive naivete.

"Well," Stanley began, with the comfortable assurance a man assumes when explaining anything to a woman, "what a man is, depends entirely upon what his neighbors think he is. They are going to think me a genius."

"But how," queried Evelyn, "if you don't really write the novels?"

"What's a novel?" scoffed Pelham. "Anyone can write one. Just look at the junk turned out every day! But the minute a man's name gets known, his work sells like wildfire. So I wear funny ties, and say that prunes make me sneeze, and I keep my hat in the desk drawer, and a lot of other things. People always notice. They stop and look at me again. Take it from me, Evelyn, it's that second glance that counts. Do you understand?"

Evelyn looked over the list of peculiarities which Stanley had left proudly with her. It contained such items as "never swim in fresh water"; "airplanes instruments of the devil"; "jewelry distasteful"; "never use Christian names." Evelyn's pencil paused halfway down the sheet, and she smiled with satisfaction.

Pelham, raising his ringless hands in horror that evening over the idea of attending light opera, was pleased to observe the curious eyes of many of his fellow boarders upon him. The conversation gradually veered about to the subject of crime, and Pelham expressed the opinion that many of the burglaries in the neighborhood recently had been committed by airplane pilots, too conspicuous to be suspected."

"Mrs. Stone's house, now," he said. "That chain of pearls might be laid along the end of a wing support, and not be discovered in a hundred years."

"Or it might be kept in a desk drawer," said one of the boarders casually. Pelham looked up, and unaccountably reddened.

"You know," remarked a second boarder, "there is a theory that those burglaries are done by someone in this neighborhood."

Pelham was uneasy when he rose from the dinner table, though he repeatedly told himself that he was unreasonable. Nevertheless, when he paused at a corner to arrange his purple tie, he turned, flushing, from a near-by policeman. For the first time since the formulation of his theory, he shrank from the second glance.

"Why don't you wear pins any more?" asked Peck at the office, and Stanley immediately forgot his momentary discomfort.

"I detest jewelry and such affectation," he pronounced pompously, and watched for the familiar gleam of wonder in Peck's eye. Instead, he saw a narrowed, speculative glimmer.

"Listen here, Pelham," Peck's voice was lowered. "I'm not one to butt in, and you would be safe with me anywhere, but you'd better watch your step. No one trusts his neighbor nowadays. That Stone affair made things pretty serious."

"What do you mean?" cried Pelham.

"Nothing, probably." Peck shrugged. "But it doesn't pay for a man to begin suddenly acting queer. Better line up with the others—if you can." With this parting shot he strolled off.

It was a miserable day for Pelham. Every time a glance was directed toward him he shrank as from a blow. The result was that he seemed queerer than ever. His mind was in a turmoil. What on earth could he do to deflect such ridiculous suspicion from himself?

"How is the author, Stanley?" cried Evelyn, brightly, that evening.

"Don't speak of it!" Pelham paled a little. "I've been an awful fool, Evelyn, and now I may be in for something serious. Why on earth didn't I know enough to stick to the hardware business?" he finished savagely.

"Then you've given up your plan?" Perhaps the disappointment in her voice was not so real as she tried to make it, for Pelham looked at her closely.

"Do you want me to?" he asked.

She nodded. "Writers are such bores," she laughed. Stanley still looked grim.

"If I can only make them believe that I didn't do it!" he muttered.

"Oh," said Evelyn, as one who could not only read his thoughts but could predict the future as well, "they'll never trouble you about that again!" And they never did.

Difficulty in Simplicity.

It is far more difficult to be simple than to be complicated; far more difficult to sacrifice skill and cease exertion in the proper place, than to expend both indiscriminately.—Ruskin.

HARSH OLD DAYS

Cruel Statutes Under Which Our Forefathers Lived.

Punishment by Burning Alive Too Common a Thing to Cause Comment a Few Centuries Ago.

Along about the second day after a judge has pronounced sentence in some sensational case in the British court of justice, people begin to speculate just what would have happened to the prisoner had he or she lived a hundred years ago. Enterprising editors detailed reporters to dig up parallel cases, and as British justice of the Eighteenth century was a primitive affair these make enlightening reading.

In one recent week sentence was pronounced in three murder cases, each one ending with the judge donning his black cap, and in each case a woman was in the dock. In the case which has aroused the most comment Mrs. Thompson, who was found guilty of helping to murder her husband, would have been burned at the stake had she lived a hundred and forty years ago.

In those days the murder of a husband by a wife, of an employer by a servant or a bishop by a clergyman, was called petty treason; that is, the murder of a superior to whom the offender owed special fidelity or from whom he received special benefits.

If a man killed his wife that was not petty treason, it was merely murder. High treason, of course, was and is an offense against the king, or even at one time against his coinage, makers of "bad" money being accused under this head.

In the 1700s men convicted of high or petty treason were hanged, drawn and quartered, while women convicted of either offense were burned at the stake. This difference in sentence was thought to be a great privilege to women. The law said "As the decency due to the sex forbids the exposure and public mangling of their bodies, the sentence is to be drawn to the gallows and there to be burned alive."

In later years the cruelty of this punishment was mitigated by strangling the criminal before the flames reached her. A stake about ten feet high was planted in the ground and the culprit suspended from an iron ring so that the faggots were kindled under her feet.

Parish registers in various parts of the country contain records of cases of burning of wives as late as 1782, that is 140 years ago. The parish register of a Somerset village contains this entry under "Marriages": "5 March, 1753, John Bruford, of West Monckton, to Susannah Davis, of Huntsville. An unfortunate marriage. She poisoned him and was burned for so doing at Wells the ensuing autumn."

An Essex register contains the following: "2 August, 1753, Thomas Ockendon, of this parish, was buried at Canewdon after he had been barbarously murdered by his own wife the Tuesday before. She was burned at Chelmsford for the said murder."

It was not until 1790 that the punishment of burning for either petty or high treason was abolished and hanging substituted. Forty years later the offense of petty treason was merged in that of willful murder, and from 1830 to this day there has been no legal difference between the murder of a wife by a husband and that of a husband by a wife.

To Each Man His Duty.

In the morning when thou risest unwillingly, let this thought be present: "I am rising to the work of a human being. Why, then, am I dissatisfied if I am going to do the things for which I exist, and for which I was brought into the world? Or, have I been made for this, to lie in the bed-clothes, and keep myself warm?"—Marcus Aurelius.

"Grocery" Stores.

Webster's dictionary gives as one of the meanings of the word "grocery" in the United States a "retail grocer's store." It is quite correct to use it in this sense and to pluralize it, so as to make it unnecessary to say "grocery stores," just as we have "bakeries," etc.

THE EMPTY ROOM

By JANE GORDON

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

DORA had been at her married sister's less than a week when she realized that her long-looked-forward-to visit was to prove disappointing.

Helen had not changed with marriage. She was still the pleasure-seeking, lovable Helen—not as concerned, perhaps, regarding the pleasure of others.

Of course Marmee—which was the girl's pet name for their tiny invalid mother—and Dora, in their most confidential moments, were too loyal to admit Helen's selfishness; but mother would say in that laughing little way of hers, "Dora is my Cinderella girl. Helen and Clarice are the proud sisters."

Helen and Clarice had both married fortune-favored men from the nearby city. And Dora, who had of necessity, remained at home to "keep the home fires burning," as it were, and to look after the comfort of dear frail Marmee—found no time for mating, or even for a chance to meet her prince.

When Helen sent the invitation to visit in her fine house near the city park, and when it had been arranged that Clarice would spare that time to pay her mother a visit also, Dora was enthusiastically happy. Marmee and she spent happy hours planning and making the simple frocks which were to isolated Dora altogether lovely.

Helen's car had come to carry her to town, and the pretty room assigned to Dora's use was directly next to that of her two young nephews.

"Help," Helen complained, "was so very difficult to get. It would relieve her a great deal if Dora could be near the children at night. Sometimes Bobby would cry out in his sleep with a bad dream. And sometimes Donnie wanted a drink of water.

Helen belonged to a number of clubs. Sarah, in the kitchen, just could not be persuaded to pay attention to the children during her absence; and Kitty, the maid, was a run-around creature, never to be found when needed.

Dora found that much of her time was spent entertaining her small nephews.

The pretty frocks which Marmee and she had fashioned were laid aside in place of substantial dresses which would bear the touch of small, grimy fingers.

It was on a rather wearisome afternoon that Dora took the little boys across to the park. Beneath the trees ran a bridle path and it was their delight to watch the beautiful saddled horses and their riders. Dora wore a ruffled dimity this afternoon and its pink matched the color of her soft cheeks. Bobby's translation of the name Dora was "Mora"—he could not speak his d's, and the word in baby tongue had the sound of "mother." Donnie, as usual, imitated his brother.

"Mora," Bobby cried, "me ride horse. Black horse, right away."

"Dear," Dora painstakingly explained, "Dora has no horse for Bobby to ride. Watch them as they go by and be a good boy."

"Won't be good boy," wailed Bobby, "want to ride horse-back."

"Ride horse-back," Donnie took up the cry.

A rider, coming slowly, drew up his black horse, amused. Gleefully the children greeted him. "Want to ride," begged Bobby. Do you suppose," he asked, "that the youngsters would be satisfied if I were to give them a little trot? I could take one at a time before me down the path."

"Why," Dora stammered, "I could not think of allowing you to interrupt your ride. You are very kind—"

"Mora, please," begged Bobby. "Please, Mora," repeated Donnie.

"I assure you," the man said, "I am no kidnaper. My name is Webster—Warren Webster. I live opposite, over there, across from the park."

Dora flushed becomingly. Warren Webster! Had she not heard of this young man of many possessions, of his philanthropies, of the young women who endeavored to gain his favor.

Helen had called him—crudely, Dora thought—"the matrimonial prize."

And here he was, lifting Bobby up before him in the saddle, then cantering back presently for Donnie. And again, and still again, while she, each time smilingly and gratefully greeted him from her place of waiting on the park bench.

As Warren Webster was a friend of Bobby's father, it was natural for Dora to inform him of her own relationship, and of her visit to this married sister in town. Mr. Webster was kindly interested—one might even have said eagerly interested.

When Dora led her happy charges back across the park it was with the understanding that all three were to enjoy a long drive the following afternoon in Warren Webster's fine car. And later, it was he who, in the same big car, drove Dora back home and entered with her, the neat, familiar room.

"I am sure," he told the mother that evening as he and Dora sat with her in the porch, "that we three are going to be a very happy family. But at first, you know—for it was love at first sight upon my part—at first those children frightened me with their cries of 'mother.' I feared that the one woman I had ever wanted was already a wife. But now all is as it should be."

Little Marmee smiled. "My Cinderella found her prince," she said, "coming down a bridle path on his charger."

ORIGINATOR OF "UNCLE SAM"

Government Worker Said to Have Created the Phrase Following the War of 1812.

This is one story of how the expression, "Uncle Sam," popular name for the United States government, is said to have originated: Immediately after the declaration of war against England in 1812, Elbert Anderson of New York, then a contractor, visited Troy, N. Y., where there was concentrated and where he purchased a large quantity of provisions, beef, pork and so forth. Samuel Wilson, an inspector of these articles at that place, was generally known as "Uncle Sam." He superintended, in person, a large number of workmen, who on this occasion, were employed in overhauling the provisions purchased by the contractor for the army. The casks were marked "E. A.—U. S." This work fell to the lot of a facetious fellow in the employ of the inspector, who, on being asked by some of his fellow workmen the meaning of the mark (for the letters U. S., for the United States, were then entirely new to them), said he did not know unless it meant "Elbert Anderson" and "Uncle Sam"—alluding exclusively, then, to the said "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The joke took among the workmen and passed currently; and "Uncle Sam" himself, being present, was occasionally rallied by them on the increasing extent of his possessions.

CLAIMS EARTH IS TOPSHAPED

French Scientist Puts Forth Theory That Will Be Found More or Less Interesting.

A French scientist finds in the great depths of the Arctic ocean an argument tending to show that the earth is slightly topshaped, the protuberance corresponding to the point of the top being at the South pole. This, he thinks, would explain the different results arrived at by the various measurements of astronomers and geodesists. The differences are very small in comparison with the entire bulk of the globe, yet they are readily appreciable, and one of the explanations that has been suggested for them is that the earth is tetrahedral in form. But the Frenchman thinks the topshape theory is preferable. The fact that to an eye looking at the earth from a point in space it would not sensibly differ in appearance from a true sphere shows how refined are the methods of science which enable men living on the surface of the globe to detect variations in its general contour.—New York Herald.

Theory of Relativity.

Einstein is said to have made the statement that only 12 men could understand his theory. This statement referred to it in its mathematical entirety, and not to a common sense understanding. In a general way everyone understands Newton's law of gravitation, although to grasp it fully one must know the calculus. In a similar way the layman can understand the relativity theory, stated by a famous mathematician to be: "One cannot determine the speed of any object moving at a uniform rate of speed in a straight line, by any experiment in motion or light, and the moving object changes its length in relation to speed and direction of its motion."

This theory had its forerunners in many countries, but is an outgrowth, more specifically, of the attempt to find the velocity of the earth's motion by a very delicate experiment with light. The theory also makes instantaneity a relative matter.

Saturday "Dress-Up" Day.

Saturdays once were almost universally pay days, but now, with many firms paying their help on other days, Saturdays have lost claim to that distinction. But another one still prevails, the New York Sun states. To the stenographer or girl clerk Saturdays are dress-up days. Even the most prim and most severely plain dresser blossoms forth on Saturday.

The system started through engagements for the afternoon Sadie, or Mamie, or Rose, wished to appear at her best when she met Tom, Dick or Harry, or whoever was going to take her to a movie or Coney Island.

When one of them quarreled with her particular beau and was without a companion for the afternoon could she admit it to the other girls? Certainly not. And so, whether an engagement awaits or not, the little stenographer dresses up every Saturday.

Looking Both Ways.

Billy Kane, an Irish hackman of Macon, Mo., was on the stand in a personal injury case. A man was suing the railroad, claiming he was hit through the negligence of the engine man. It was in evidence that three boys were standing on the edge of the platform as the train came in. The lawyer for the railroad was cross-examining Mr. Kane pretty severely, and the sharper he became the more exasperating seemed the witness' answers. Finally he demanded the witness tell him the exact position of those boys.

"Well, sir," replied Mr. Kane smoothly, "their backs was a-facing the east."

Cause for Worry.

A Sunday school teacher was telling the children of her class about the miracle of Christ changing the water into wine at the marriage feast of Cana. One little fellow jumped to the floor, saying: "Oh, that's nothing; my dad made some wine and then changed it into vinegar." Now dad's worried for fear the boy will get him in bad.

SECOND GLANCE

By GRACE CANFIELD

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"NO, I thank you," said Mr. Pelham gently; "prunes make me sneeze." His landlady, Miss Caruth, looked up in surprise, to Mr. Pelham's gratification. His first experiment had worked.

When he reached his office that morning, he walked to his desk, and opening his drawer, laid his hat inside instead of hanging it on the wall.

"It's a theory of mine," he explained to Evelyn that evening, when she questioned him about the odd color effect of his red-clocked hose and his purple tie, "I have decided to be famous, as the quickest way to wealth." He pondered a moment. "To be a novelist would be best, I think."

A speculative gleam came into Evelyn's lovely blue eyes, but she was not one to criticise without being sure of her ground.

"Won't you please explain it to me?" she asked, with deceptive naivete.

"Well," Stanley began, with the comfortable assurance a man assumes when explaining anything to a woman, "what a man is, depends entirely upon what his neighbors think he is. They are going to think me a genius."

"But how," queried Evelyn, "if you don't really write the novels?"

"What's a novel?" scoffed Pelham. "Anyone can write one. Just look at the junk turned out every day! But the minute a man's name gets known, his work sells like wildfire. So I wear funny ties, and say that prunes make me sneeze, and I keep my hat in the desk drawer, and a lot of other things. People always notice. They stop and look at me again. Take it from me, Evelyn, it's that second glance that counts. Do you understand?"

Evelyn looked over the list of peculiarities which Stanley had left proudly with her. It contained such items as "never swim in fresh water"; "airplanes instruments of the devil"; "jewelry distasteful"; "never use Christian names." Evelyn's pencil paused halfway down the sheet, and she smiled with satisfaction.

Pelham, raising his ringless hands in horror that evening over the idea of attending light opera, was pleased to observe the curious eyes of many of his fellow boarders upon him. The conversation gradually veered about to the subject of crime, and Pelham expressed the opinion that many of the burglaries in the neighborhood recently had been committed by airplane pilots, too conspicuous to be suspected."

"Mrs. Stone's house, now," he said. "That chain of pearls might be laid along the end of a wing support, and not be discovered in a hundred years."

"Or it might be kept in a desk drawer," said one of the boarders casually. Pelham looked up, and unaccountably reddened.

"You know," remarked a second boarder, "there is a theory that those burglaries are done by someone in this neighborhood."

Pelham was uneasy when he rose from the dinner table, though he repeatedly told himself that he was unreasonable. Nevertheless, when he paused at a corner to arrange his purple tie, he turned, flushing, from a near-by policeman. For the first time since the formulation of his theory, he shrank from the second glance.

"Why don't you wear pins any more?" asked Peck at the office, and Stanley immediately forgot his momentary discomfort.

"I detest jewelry and such affectation," he pronounced pompously, and watched for the familiar gleam of wonder in Peck's eye. Instead, he saw a narrowed, speculative glimmer.

"Listen here, Pelham," Peck's voice was lowered. "I'm not one to butt in, and you would be safe with me anywhere, but you'd better watch your step. No one trusts his neighbor nowadays. That Stone affair made things pretty serious."

"What do you mean?" cried Pelham.

"Nothing, probably." Peck shrugged. "But it doesn't pay for a man to begin suddenly acting queer. Better line up with the others—if you can." With this parting shot he strolled off.

It was a miserable day for Pelham. Every time a glance was directed toward him he shrank as from a blow. The result was that he seemed queerer than ever. His mind was in a turmoil. What on earth could he do to deflect such ridiculous suspicion from himself?

"How is the author, Stanley?" cried Evelyn, brightly, that evening.

"Don't speak of it!" Pelham paled a little. "I've been an awful fool, Evelyn, and now I may be in for something serious. Why on earth didn't I know enough to stick to the hardware business?" he finished savagely.

"Then you've given up your plan?" Perhaps the disappointment in her voice was not so real as she tried to make it, for Pelham looked at her closely.

"Do you want me to?" he asked.

She nodded. "Writers are such bores," she laughed. Stanley still looked grim.

"If I can only make them believe that I didn't do it!" he muttered.

"Oh," said Evelyn, as one who could not only read his thoughts but could predict the future as well, "they'll never trouble you about that again!" And they never did.

Difficulty in Simplicity.

It is far more difficult to be simple than to be complicated; far more difficult to sacrifice skill and cease exertion in the proper place, than to expend both indiscriminately.—Ruskin.
